—Lamine street, between Second and Third presented a busy scene yesterday. The new rock crusher of Mr. Cowan's was in full blast and the geological pile was rapidly reduced into atoms. Quite a crowd of on-lookers gazed upon the novel machine as it crushed the massive rocks into little particles with a heavy clatter.

—Uncle Riley, an old colored man, was entertaining an interested crowd of listeners yesterday in East Sedalia with his tales of slavery days and early reminiscences of Missouri. Some of his stories are of historical interest, while the majority consist of the superstitions of his race, during slavery days, and which, to an extent they still retain.

—Uncle Bill Riley, of the hotel which bears his name, wishes the fact distinctly understood that when his name is written there should always be a "B" inserted. He was christened William B. O'Reilly, but for convenience dropped the O and the apostrophe. The correction and apology on the part of the BAZOO is made with pleasure.

—The people around Scrougeueck must be worse than heathens, if the correspondent of the Tipton Times from that place is to be relied upon. After commenting upon the death of a lady in that community, the correspondent winds up with the statement that "as she requested, she was buried with her babe in her arms." What had the poor baby done to deserve so horrible a fate? Through a charity, it will try and be imagined that the baby was dead also at the time of interment.

Circuit Court.

The jury was dismissed in the circuit court Friday evening, and a new one will be empaneled to-morrow. Yesterday was taken up in making entries in new cases and arranging for next week's session.

Runaway.

The milk wagon team of R. T. Fleming became scared this morning in East Sedalia and ran away. At the corner of Fourth and Lafayette streets the wagon came in contact with a fire hydrant and was overturned. The principal loss was the spilling of the milk.

Thieves Around.

H. L. Hollister, boarding with Mrs. Withers on Broadway, had his room entered on Friday night, by burglars, who secured his watch, pocket knife and about four dollars in money. The police are on the track of these light fingered gentry, and they will soon be in the toils if they hang around much longer.

A. M. E. Bishops.

Bishops Warren, Grant and Ward of the A. M. E. church passed through the city on No. 1 yesterday afternoon en route to inspect the church work in the west and south. They were met at the depot by a delegation of colored members of the denomination and right royally entertained during their brief stay.

Mistress Sweden.

The folk love of Sweden is filled with interesting traditions of love and war, but the bar room of Ben Johnson, the jolly Swedish drink mixer, is filled with the purest liquor. Every morning Ben serves a glorious good lunch to his customers and makes everyone feel at home. No place in Sedalia can one enjoy a good drink and a jolly good fellowship like he can at Ben's.

A Piscatorial Party.

Now keep this mum. It was told to the BAZOO on the quiet. But a little party of sporting men have gone to Clinton to-day to entirely empty Osage river of fish. Nary a minnow do they propose leaving. They are going to use "livah" for bait and will completely flood the Sedalia market Monday morning with the finny tribe. The party is composed of Charles Werner, Tom Smith, Frank Kell, W. C. McConnell and Billy Clendenning.

Stole a Saddle.

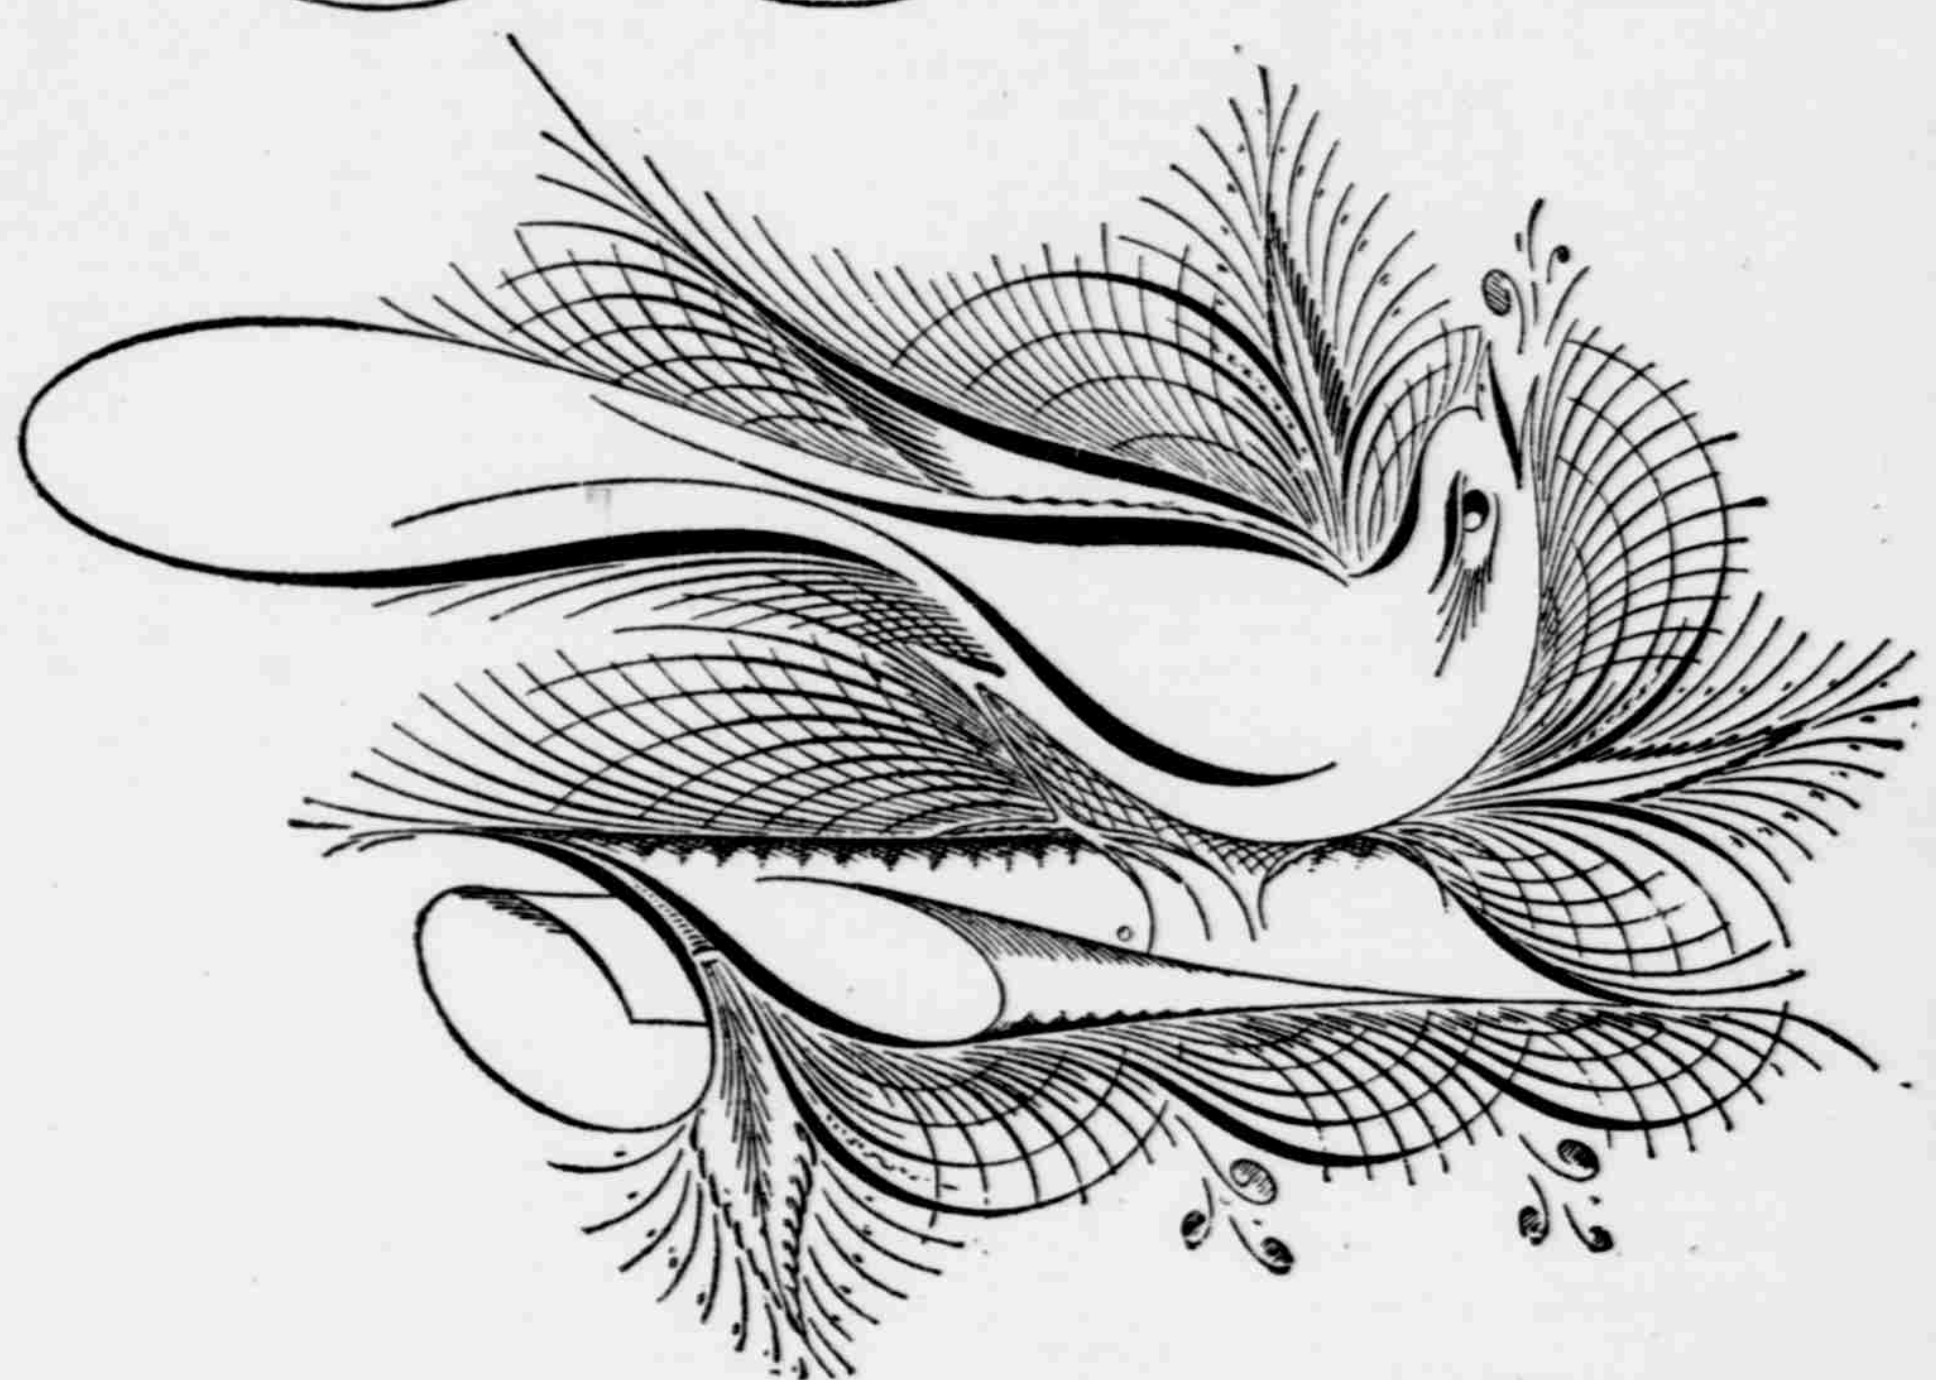

Joseph S. Bennett found a saddle last Saturday and took it to Mr. Winfrey's second hand store, where he sold it for sixty-five cents. A. J. Maltbeager lost a saddle last Saturday from the top side of his pony and on looking around found it in Mr. Winfrey's second hand store, consequently Joseph Bennett was arraigned before His Honor, Justice Fisher yesterday on the charge of stealing the saddle, and Joseph acknowledged the corn, or rather the theft. The saddle was found in the trunk of a horse, which Bennett paid by mortgaging his team. Mr. Winfrey is not held to blame in the matter, as Bennett represented to him that the saddle was his own.

Almost a Cutting Affray.

Yesterday morning while the passengers were waiting at the Union depot for No. 1, south-bound M. K. & T. their attention was attracted by angry exclamations and the sound of a scuffle. Officer Caroes, depot master, hastened to the scene, and discovered two negro hotel porters indulging in a little scrapping match. As the officer approached, one of the participants, George Reed, drew a large knife from his pocket and opening the blade, attempted to conceal the knife in his sleeve. Both men were arrested, but Al Stanford the other participant, was released on bail.

George Reed is an ex-porter of the City hotel, having been fired last Monday for misconduct, while Al Stanford is porter for the Hotel Kaiser. The trouble began by Reed playfully knocking and thumping Stanford. The latter requested him to "leave up" several times, and finally, losing patience, knocked the fellow down. It was then that Reed drew his knife. Had not Officer Caroes interfered severe results might have followed, as it was neither party was injured.

A Grand Occasion.

The Ladies' Court (colored) of the Centennial Lodge of Sedalia, Masonic order, held an installation service at the A. M. E. church Friday night. A grand festival of Olympic grandeur followed the installation ceremonies. The ladies were in full uniform, white dress with red sash, and extended a hearty welcome to the sterner sex after the business of the lodge had taken place.

The colored band was present and discoursed enchanting music for the occasion. Anvils were fired, pyrotechnical displays followed and every one gave themselves up to a general good time. It will be an occasion long to be remembered by the colored ladies of the lodge, nothing but pleasure was the order of the evening. The order of the Ladies Court is rapidly gaining headway in this city and this pleasant event will give it an impetus that will assure the future of the order nothing but success.

The Earth's Population.

The human family to-day consists of about one billion four hundred and fifty million individuals. In Asia, where man was first planted, there are now about eight hundred million; on an average of one hundred and twenty to the square mile. In Europe there are three hundred and twenty million, averaging one hundred to the square mile. In Africa there are two hundred and ten million. In America, North and South, there are one hundred and ten million, relatively thinly scattered and recent. In the islands, large and small, probably ten million. The extremes of the white and black are as five to three, the remaining seven hundred million being intermediate brown and tawny.

That lady, married or single, who has become irregular each month, who is feeble, pale and emaciated, who is annoyed with aches and pains, should use one or two bottles of English Female Bitters. Its action is prompt and satisfactory. It is prepared specially for these troubles.

Marco Bozarris the Second.

At midnight, in his musty den, the editor sat, dreaming of the hour, when by the work of his feeble pen, the world should tremble at his power; in dreams, through campaigns hot, he bore the trophies of a conqueror; in dreams, his paper by all was read; then woe his diamond-blazing pen; then came the dollars rolling in; then were his pockets lined with tin, and honors round his head. An hour passed on—the editor awoke; that bright dream was his last, he awoke to feel a blacksnake long, crackety—crack round his shoulders strong; he awoke—to cry out "Holy Smoke!" and get from the blacksnake another stroke, the licks were falling thick and fast as lightning flashes again and again; the editor grabbed his walking cane and then got in his work. Strike—he hit him over the head; strike—he cracked him 'til he bled; strike—he nearly knocked him dead—the editor fought like a Turk. They fought—like brave men, long and well; they scattered the exchanges around the floor; the editor conquered—into his chair he fell, sweating from every pore. His working printers 'round him saw him smile, when rung their proud huzzas; the red field was won; they saw him then the front door close; then came back and blow his nose, and called him a fighting son-of-a-gun.

A Peculiar Couple.

For several days past, an oldish like man and woman have been haunting the depot and hotels of the city, night and day. They visited every train and seemed to anxiously scan each face as it emerged from the cars, a disappointed look then would come over their pallid cheeks and they would depart, the lady to her boarding house and the man to the different hotels to closely scrutinize the registers. He seemed to even study the hand writing of the different guests. They asked no questions, spoke very low and tenderly to each other, as if some deep grief was upon them both, and when asked by a reporter if they were looking for friends, the man answered very shortly they were not, and the couple then turned and walked away. Absolutely nothing could be learned of their strange actions or where they are from. Last evening they took the M. K. & T. passenger south, apparently abandoning their search.

The old lady's appearance was one of refinement, and she was expensively, though plainly dressed. Her face showed marks of grief and recent weeping. From the gentleman's appearance one would judge that he was a well-to-do farmer or stockman. Evidently some calamity has fallen upon the aged couple, as they seemed to share their grief in common, only conjectures can be indulged in, however, as to the cause of their trouble. But their actions were peculiar, to say the least.

Alas, Poor Smiths!

Jim Gossage has a warrant for a man who gave his name as Smith for disturbing the peace and dignity of the Salvation Army. No description is embodied in this warrant, so Jim at a loss to nail the right man. BAZOO reporter being one of the unfortunate Smith family, was collared as soon as he entered the police court yesterday morning to give a full account of himself on last Thursday night or thereabouts. After proving his innocence beyond all manner of doubt, Charley Smith a cigar maker, was called in. He proved a clean record on the Salvation score card and was allowed to depart in peace. A number of Smiths were examined; John Smith, Jim Smith, Tom Smith and Smiths without a name, but the Smith he longed for never came.

It is to be hoped the villain will be captured. Strong talk is being made of holding an indignation meeting Monday by the Smiths and Lynch the scoundrel who has thus taken the honored and illustrious name of Smith in vain. No words of condemnation can be drawn that will sufficiently condemn the rascal who has thus willfully vilified the historic family. Let the vile traducer be crucified with cleaver.

Central Business College.

During the past week Chas. Cloak of Allenton, Mo., and W. C. Johnston of Hartsville, Mo., have entered school to pursue the commercial course. Both are bright young men and will do well in their school work.

Mr. C. W. Smith, who has been a pupil of C. B. C. for the past seven months, left last night to accept a position with a commission firm in St. Louis.

Prof. Robbins gave tickets free to the entire school to attend the lecture given at the Congregational church by Mrs. Matilda Fletcher Thursday night. All attendees and enjoyed it very much. It seems the C. B. C. can furnish a pretty good audience when it tries itself.

Mr. J. H. Thomas, having just completed the Commercial course in the above institution, has accepted a position as book-keeper for Shultz "The Hatter."

Mr. Thomas is a young man of good morals, well educated, and possessed of first class business principles. He will certainly make a good bookkeeper. Anyone thinking of taking a commercial course, a course in shorthand or penmanship should investigate the facilities of Central Business College before going elsewhere. The courses are thorough and fine class in every respect, containing all that is practical and useful. The branches taught in the commercial course are, book-keeping by double and single entry, business arithmetic, business grammar, actual business, letter writing, business penmanship, elocution, spelling, business law and rapid calculation. In these branches everything not practical is omitted, and only the practical and necessary parts are taught, thus enabling the pupil to acquire a thorough business education in a much shorter time than is necessary in our public schools.

Con. John Sobieski will deliver his famous lecture on Poland in this city next Tuesday night. It is understood that it will be one of the finest lectures that has ever been delivered in the city. All that have ever listened to this eloquent orator will be glad to know that they will have a chance to hear him again.
